

MICRO/MACROECONOMICS OF THE LABOR MARKET
WHEN THEORY MEETS EVIDENCE
University of Cergy-Pontoise
April 7-8, 2010

The labor market is not an ordinary market because workers and unemployed people are not ordinary goods. Labor supply depends on complex decision mechanisms that do not rest on the simple introduction of leisure into the utility function of a representative agent. For instance, agents' heterogeneity matters.

This workshop aims at giving an overview of the diversity of the existing theories on the labor market and at making a point on the state of the art. Invited speakers are prominent specialists on the field. Their theoretical models are driven by the concern of fitting evidence.

LOCAL ORGANIZERS

Stéphane AURAY (University of Cergy, University of the Littoral)
Stefano BOSI (University of Cergy)
Olivier CHARLOT (University of Cergy)
Thomas TREGOUET (University of Cergy)

LIST OF PARTICIPANTS

Stéphane AURAY (University of Cergy-Pontoise, University of the Littoral)
Frédérique BEC (University of Cergy-Pontoise)
Stefano BOSI (University of Cergy-Pontoise)
Olivier CHARLOT (University of Cergy-Pontoise)
Pierre CAHUC (CREST Paris)
Hélène COUPRIE (University of Cergy-Pontoise)
Bruno DECREUSE (University of Mediterranean)
Olivier DONNI (University of Cergy-Pontoise)
Aurélien EYQUEM (ENS Lyon)
Etienne LEHMANN (CREST)
Giulio FELLA (Queen Mary University of London)
Arnaud LEFRANC (University of Cergy-Pontoise)
Jean-Michel GRANDMONT (CREST, University of Venice)
Franck MALHERBET (University of Rouen)
Claudio MICHELACCI (CEMFI)
Javier ORTEGA (City University of London)
Alexis PARMENTIER (University of Evry)
Barbara PETRONGOLO (London School of Economics)
Bernard-Daniel SOLOMON (University of Montreal)
Antoine TERRACOL (University of Paris 1)
Thomas TREGOUET (University of Cergy-Pontoise)
Antonella TRIGARI (Bocconi University)
Tanguy VAN YPERSELE (University of Mediterranean)
Etienne WASMER (Institute of Political Science of Paris)